

THE CAPILANO REVIEW

is 20
years old in 1992.

And we're still challenging readers with our innovative approach to words and images, and finding new ways to explore the meaning of art. Grocery lists?? 16 Studies of the Letter H?? Yup. Along with photo essays on herbs and crypts, poems about love and S&M, fiction about old friends and killers, and non-fiction about sex, architecture, and politics. We put it together on acid-free paper, with vegetable-based inks, and stitch the bindings so you can enjoy your collection of one of Canada's most unique interdisciplinary magazines for years to come.

Later this year we'll be celebrating our second decade with an issue that features the writers and artists who have caught the attention of some of our most famous alumni, and we're planning another special issue exploring the art of the west coast. Ideas and great writing are pouring in the door every day. Help us celebrate with an early renewal and give TCR to your friends. We've got a great back issue sale on now, as well, so use the form on the back of this page to place your order.

A NOVEL IN 3 DAYS?

THE 15th ANNUAL INTERNATIONAL

3-DAY NOVEL CONTEST

Labour Day Weekend, 1992

ANVIL PRESS of Vancouver, Canada is pleased to announce the 15th Annual International 3-Day Novel Contest (formerly sponsored by Pulp Press). The contest will once again be held during the Labour Day Weekend, September 5-September 7, 1992.

Since its inception in 1978 as a barroom challenge, the 3-Day Novel Contest has gone on to garner international attention and a reputation as the cheeky and uncompromising rebel of literary forms. Attracting writers, both professional and first-time, from around the world, the contest remains in a league of its own: The world's most notorious literary marathon.

Since its birth, interest in the contest has grown steadily, now attracting over 400 writers annually.

Contestants can enter by sending an entry form to Anvil Press (address below) postmarked by September 4, and including an entry fee of $10. For a copy of the rules, an SASE (International Reply Coupons if from outside Canada) will ensure prompt return.

FRIENDS & BENEFACTORS PROGRAM

The Capilano Review has been fighting the funding battle successfully for over 19 years. Now, however, with rising postal costs and the GST, the magazine faces more urgent challenges than ever before. To continue publishing excellent new writing and work in the visual arts, TCR needs your immediate and generous support. As a Friend or Benefactor, you will receive a tax receipt, mention in subsequent issues, and a free subscription. We hope you will consider this request favourably. Please fill out the form below and mail it in the enclosed postage-paid envelope.

Friends: $50 - $500
Benefactors: $500 - $1000
