

THE CAPILANO REVIEW

Number 15

1/1979

CONTENTS

Six Poems	5	David McFadden
The Cougar	12	Colin Browne
Images & Interview	29	R. Fish
		George Bowering Section
	52	West Window
	53	Old Standards
	62	two chapters from The Dead Sailors
	69	Carter Fell
	86	14 Plums: An Interview
Photographs '79 & Interview	108	Nathen Hohn
Photographs '77-'78 & Interview	118	Ken Straiton
You Wouldn't Want to	128	Gladys Hindmarch
	135	Contributors
	COVER
Portrait of George Bowering		Nathen Hohn

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has become a major employer in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.

The public sector has also become a major employer of women. In 1980, women made up 40% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 50%. The public sector has become a major employer of women in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with disabilities. In 1980, people with disabilities made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%.

The public sector has also become a major employer of people from ethnic minorities. In 1980, people from ethnic minorities made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people from ethnic minorities in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with mental health problems.

In 1980, people with mental health problems made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people with mental health problems in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with physical health problems.

In 1980, people with physical health problems made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people with physical health problems in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with learning disabilities.

In 1980, people with learning disabilities made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people with learning disabilities in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with autism.

In 1980, people with autism made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people with autism in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy. The public sector has also become a major employer of people with Asperger's syndrome.

In 1980, people with Asperger's syndrome made up 1% of the public sector workforce, and by 1995, this figure had risen to 3%. The public sector has become a major employer of people with Asperger's syndrome in the UK, and its growth has been a major factor in the overall growth of the economy.