

*By the time the fool has learned to play the game,
the players have dispersed.*

— ASHANTI PROVERB

The predominantly rationalistic European finds much that is human alien to him, and he prides himself on this without realizing that his rationality is won at the expense of his vitality, and that the primitive part of his personality is consequently condemned to a more or less underground existence.

— CARL JUNG, from Memories, Dreams, Reflections

EDITOR      PIERRE COUPEY

ASSISTANT EDITOR      GLADYS HINDMARCH

ASSOCIATE EDITORS      POETRY
JANICE HARRIS
DAPHNE MARLATT

PROSE & DRAMA
WENDY PICKELL
BILL SCHERMBRUCKER

VISUAL MEDIA
STEVE HARRIS
ANN ROSENBERG

PROMOTIONS MANAGER      PENNY CONNELL

SUBSCRIPTIONS MANAGER      ALICE RATZLAFF

SECRETARY (ACTING)      KAREN KJARSGAARD

The Capilano Review is published twice a year from Capilano College, 2055 Purcell Way, North Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Microfilm editions and reprints are available from Xerox University Microfilms, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

The Capilano Review acknowledges the assistance of The Canada Council, the Capilano College Humanities Division, and the Capilano College Student Society.

Manuscripts should be submitted to the Editor at the above address. They must be accompanied by a self-addressed envelope and Canadian postage to ensure return.

Printed in Victoria, British Columbia, by Morriss Printing Company Ltd.