

Brown Bag Workshop: Researching Culture across Disciplines, Media and Senses

February 17, 2016 at 12 PM
Mallison Conference Room K8652
SFU Burnaby Campus

Please join two PhD candidates, Marie-Therese Abogo (Anthropology, Laval University) and Vincent Andrisani (Communication, SFU) in a workshop on challenges and possibilities of interdisciplinary, intermedial and multisensory research practices.

Speaking from their own experiences of researching diasporic Afro-quebecer hip-hop music culture in Quebec city (Abogo) and the politics of soundmaking and listening in the urban spaces of Havana, Cuba (Andrisani), the panelists will discuss how they work across academic disciplines—communication studies and anthropology—and develop their critical and creative methodologies to study different forms of culture in local and transnational contexts. We welcome questions, comments and critiques.

Chair: Dr. Milena Droumeva, School of Communication, Simon Fraser University

Sponsored by FCAT's Centre for Policy Studies on Culture and Communities and School of Communication at SFU